How to transfer project to another computer?
Posted by femi.ariyibi - 06 Mar 2018 10:52

I have recently finished editing a project on lightworks, but I want to transfer the project to another computer because, the current one won’t allow me to export it. I followed the instructions of how to create an archive but none the edits I have made are actually there, it’s just got the videos I used. It’s like I have to start all over again, when I go on lightworks archive it doesn’t give me an option to select whole sequence so I don’t know how to do that. I also can’t export it, so doing it via export won’t work either, I really don’t want to lose all my work. Please help.

Moderated:  This is not a bug, so this thread has been moved. The "Bugs" forum is intended to be used for bug reporting, not for help with operational problems. By cluttering it up you effectively hide genuine bugs from the developers.

You’re more likely to receive the help that you need here - jwrl.

============================================================================

Re: How to transfer project to another computer?
Posted by briandrys - 06 Mar 2018 11:08

You can export the archive of your project and move that to your other computer. Ensure that include the media as part of the archive.

You will details on P212 in the V14 User Guide found in downloads > documentation

============================================================================

Re: How to transfer project to another computer?
Posted by schrauber - 06 Mar 2018 12:18

The user manual unfortunately lacks some details.

If you want to archive a project and restore it to another computer, see:

============================================================================
Thank you for your help, I managed to transfer the project.