I don't use Flash** anymore. So I only see a grey, empty rectangle. Please provide a link to the video.

** nobody should use that unsafe Flash player anymore. Flash has been replaced by HTML5 (and CSS3) a long time ago. Unfortunately this forum still uses old Flash code for unknown reasons and opens it for ransomware and other malicious software which comes through security holes in the Flash player.

Under Windows I see a displayed YouTube link - the actual link is -

- which works as a pasted URL.

Perhaps there is a Linux issue at work??

EDIT: Can't paste the link without it showing the video - of course

The edited link I see is

www\*\*youtube\*\*com/watch?feature=player\_embedded&v=RYel4YceZNC

I think it is the lwks site, selecting the flash player instead of the html5 player.

@RWAV (and donkpow)

Thanks for the link. Nope, it's not a Linux issue - it is the same in Windows 7, I just tried with Firefox.

@donkpow

I don't have Flash installed at all (and never will), so Kunena (the name of the forum software) should switch to a HTML5 player. But it doesn't. Instead I see a dark-grey rectangle and a message to install a missing plug-in.

I finally watched the video - very nice !

Thanks for letting us watch your trip. I wish New Zealand would not be so far, far away from here.
Overall - nice editing and - what would we all do without a bag full of GoPros 🍷

Again, thanks brosa for the video.
