

Done with our festival run, releasing my first short film online.

On this day one year ago we had our world premier, which turned out to be just the start of what ended up as a pretty successful film festival run.

Completely done with Lightworks Pro (and with some technical glitch assists from some of you community members), I cannot think of any better day than today to release the film into the wild.

Would love your thoughts, good or bad, on how my first film turned out. 🍌

Congratulations on the festival successes. I look forward to watching this when I get home from work. Looks interesting.

Thanks for showing an interest! We approached a topic that doesn't get nearly enough attention, and I'm really proud of what my cast was able to do. 🍌
