Building a Free Library of Images for Everyone

Posted by Eric Matyas - 18 Jan 2017 09:15

Hi everyone,

I've been building a library of images that you are welcome to freely use in your projects. They might be useful under titles, for visual effects or anything else you can think of. They are all original...all my own work. All I ask is to be attributed as indicated on my homepage:

soundimage.org/

The images are on my "TXR" pages (for "Textures.")

I'm adding new ones all the time, so be sure to check back often. I sincerely hope that some of them are useful. Any and all constructive feedback is welcome and always appreciated. 🙂

All the best,

Eric

Happy Tuesday Everyone,

A bunch of cool new seamless images are ready here:

TXR - CONCRETE / PAVEMENT

soundimage.org/txr-concrete/

Some of the TXR pages are getting a bit out of control so I'll be creating additional pages specifically for seamless images.

Btw more new music tracks are coming tomorrow.

And if anyone happens to need some custom music created, I'm doing that as well at very low cost...feel free to email me. (My email address is at the bottom of my homepage.)

Have a good week!

Hey guys,

A bunch of nice seamless moss images are ready that might work as building blocks for ground cover:

TXR - GROUND

 soundimage.org/txr-ground/

I've also had requests for cartoon-style textures, mostly for 2D games and visual novels, so here's a start to that:

TXR - BRICK - Cartoon

 soundimage.org/txr-brick-cartoon/

TXR - ROCK/STONE - Cartoon

 soundimage.org/txr-rockstone-cartoon/

TXR - WOOD - Cartoon

 soundimage.org/txr-wood-cartoon/

More new music tracks will be ready Wednesday as I continue my quest to provide looping versions of every track on my site, so be sure to check my other thread.

Have a good week! ☺

Hello Eric,

First, thank you for keeping us updated on a regular basis.

I just downloaded and used one of your loops (Future-RPG.mp3) for some test and detected that when concatenating, audible dropouts at the joins appear. It could be that this is caused by MP3 format which is known to cause gaps under certain conditions when splitted and re-joined with most encoders. I see that Reaper DAW is aware of the problem and applies steep fade-in/out by default, but still it's audible.

The wave form of "Future-RPG.mp3" at the join looks like this in Lightworks.

As far as I know, more recent LAME encoders (3.97 and above) don't show the issue, but best way surely would be delivering for download in uncompressed PCM.wav format, if file size matters, maybe zipped?

Hi Hugly,

I duplicated the issue precisely in Premiere Pro and found an easy fix:

simply trim both clips by one frame. It doesn't appear to be an encoding issue; rather, it's that Lightworks (like Premiere) is dealing with audio at 24 or 30 fps. The flat line you see doesn't exist in Future RPG; rather, it's the editing software trying to deal with audio at that frame rate. Sometimes, in my own videos, I need to edit an audio clip more precisely than at 1/24th or 1/30th of a second so I have to use software like Adobe Audition to do it. Anyhow, give it a try by trimming one frame from each end...you might even try a 1-frame cross-fade between the two clips (if Lightworks allows for it)...but I found that it wasn't necessary (in Premiere.) 🙂

Concatenating the file in foobar2K with disabled DSP makes the gap audible as well. That's Reaper and it also shows the horizontal line which causes the gap at the join. I can imagine that a WAV file exported form your DAW won't show it.

I understand that WAV delivery isn't an option for you. If the horizontal line isn't there in PCM format and you wish to get rid of the issue for future delivery, give LAME v3.100 MP3 encoder a try. I've used LAME 3.99 on splitted WAV files with continuous music (live concerts) with perfect results many times.
