Does AUTO choose the nearest frame rate for my imported clip?

The logic isn't documented, but as far as I can see, if the first imported media file is video, the project frame rate is set to match its frame rate. If the first imported media file isn't video, 24 fps (aka Mixed Rates) is selected.

After importing the first media file you can check the project frame rate on the project card under 'Project.Details Frame rate'.

Arguably it may be best to select the appropriate frame rate manually depending on locale, acquisition equipment and file sources.
