Yes, there are two ways to influence the sort order, not from within Lightworks, but on OS level.

Lightworks loads all LUTs present in the LUTs folder, e.g. on Linux '~/Lightworks/LUTs', including all sub folders and displays them as a linear list sorted by path (read: including the folder name, which isn't shown in the list).

With Lightworks shut down, create a subfolder in the LUTs folder and give it a name which sorts on top, e.g. '"1"' or '"A"' or '"1 Favs"', then move your favorites to that folder. Or, add a leading string which sorts on top to the file names of your favourites .

Both methods allow creating more than one category and you can combine them.

By the way, a search filter on LUTs, same as on Effects and Fonts, would still come in very handy - maybe with next release?
