[LUTS since LWKS 12.5+]

C:\Users\Public\Documents\Lightworks\LUTs

(%PUBLIC%\Documents\Lightworks\LUTs)

A thread for user generated LUTs (or ones which (of course) are compatible with LWKS (or can be converted)) (^1)

* adding a "project" LUT:

www.dma.ufg.ac.at/assets/24790/intern/add_project_lut_s.mp4

+

* adding a clip based LUT

[see attached img]

old style:

- edit a video-reference frame
- generate a pattern: "convert hald:16 hald16_gen_src_lut.png"
- use reference frame manipulation with the pattern file
- use pattern file for all other images, eg.

"convert src0001.dpx hald16_gen_FIN_lut.png -hald-clut -depth 16 final0001.png"

I'm hoping to use the new cinemaDNG import feature with luts for dailies and rough cut proxy editing without the need to transcode first. The CDNG import works well and plays in real time on my workstation. Makes round tripping to Resolve for finishing a more efficient process.

The blog writer that Great White linked to has created a commercial app with his unique color grading approach. Very interesting and powerful new concept.

I'm pursuing a surreal fine art aesthetic for some personal projects. More like painting with light. So I'm more interested in creating luts than using 3rd party versions.

Most of the canned ones are designed for video cameras and don't play well with a color rich raw camera like my D16.

(off topic[duplicates]: it seems if you name your images, A.png, B.png, the forum adds the date, thats ok)
